A Relaxing Summer

Copenhagen wonders and seasonal recipes

We recently embarked on a charming road trip to Copenhagen, where summer truly felt magical! From the vibrant shopping scene and delicious food spots to the fascinating museums and historic palaces, it was an unforgettable experience.

For the rest of the summer, we'll be staying in Belgium. My focus will shift to my vegetable garden, savoring fresh produce, and enjoying relaxing garden BBQs.

Wishing everyone a fantastic and sun-filled summer!

Recipes

No tropical dishes this time. Embracing a summer in Belgium, I've decided to share two recipes with origins a bit closer to home. Both are made with seasonal products: fresh maatjes and juicy cherries. Enjoy these taste-of-summer dishes!

Fresh maatjes

I eagerly await maatjes season every year. Ideally, I eat them pure. But occasionally I am tempted to prepare an appetizer or lunch with maatjes. One of my favorites? A fresh salad with maatjes, green beans and new potatoes.

Clafoutis with cherries

Who doesn't love clafoutis, one of the most classic desserts of French cuisine. After visiting the Engelendael cherry farm, I came home with 4 kilograms of cherries. I was in the mood for a quick dessert, and nothing is easier than baking clafoutis.

Copenhagen

A city by the water

In Copenhagen, is inextricably linked to the water. On sunny days, everyone gathers at the city's quays and canals, from Nyhavn to Christianshavn. We also ventured further with a social sailing trip from Hey Captain.

Royal Copenhagen

The Danish monarchy, over 1,000 years old, boasts historic palaces and castles. We explored the castle island of Slotsholmen, the fairytale Rosenborg Slot, and caught the changing of the guard at Amalienborg Slot.

The Brussels Ommegang

Brussels dazzled this summer with the annual Ommegang, featuring over 1,400 costumed actors reenacting a key part of Brussels' history. This festival is a tribute to the city's history and recognized by UNESCO as intangible cultural heritage.
